

20TH FARM SHOW TO BE HELD FROM JAN. 20 TO 24

Board Organizes, Program Group Named At Thursday Meeting.

BUMPER CROPS BOOST DISPLAY

Adams countians are planning to enter fruit and farm products in exhibitions at the state farm products show which will open for the twentieth time January 20 to 24, in the farm show building, Cameron and Maclay streets, Harrisburg.

The farm show commission met Thursday and organized in preparation for the January exposition.

J. Hansell French secretary of agriculture, was elected chairman; Harry M. Terrell, of the department of agriculture, vice chairman and treasurer, and J. M. Fry, of the Pennsylvania State college, secretary.

The commission named this program committee: H. C. Fetterolf, of the department of public instruction; Fred Cook, of Beaver; French and Terrell. The committee will develop a program for each day of the show.

Demand for Space Heavy
Farm Show Director Howard G. Elsam said the demand for commercial booths is unusually heavy and that many exhibitors want more space at the next show than they had before.

Bumper crops and general improvement in farm conditions, the commission said, warrant the belief that the 1936 show will make records in exhibits and attendance.

In order to free the farm show building for preparations for the show, the state WPA offices will be moved to another location next week.

The commission called a meeting of the farm show committees for an evening of October 17 in Harrisburg. The commission will meet again October 18.

TWO TELL SAME HOEY STORIES

Employees of H. H. Rogers Describe Death of Actress Ten Days Ago.

West Chester, Pa., Sept. 20 (AP).—Two more witnesses told unhesitating stories to a coroner's jury absolving Henry H. Rogers, Jr., and his guest, William J. Kelley, of any part in the violent death of the glamorous Evelyn Hoey, in the Rogers farm house ten days ago.

Claude Battin and George Yamada, a Japanese, both employed by Rogers, confirmed Kelley's testimony that the son of the late Standard oil multi-millionaire rushed into the kitchen of the house after the shot was heard and announced "She's done it. She shot herself."

Attorney Vincent Downey, of New York, representing the girl's parents, meantime refused to believe she committed suicide. He sat at the council table as an observer.

COUP BREAKS LONG RANKS

Announcements of Noe and Martin for Governor and Senator Upset Plans.

New Orleans, Sept. 20 (AP).—A political coup executed early Thursday by Lieutenant-Governor James A. Noe and Wade O. Martin, chairman of the Louisiana public service commission, apparently let down the bars in the old Long machine and it is everybody for himself.

While the Long lieutenants were squabbling over candidates for the ticket for the January election, Noe and Martin took the bull by the horns and formally announced for governor and United States senator, respectively.

The announcement broke like a thunderclap over the Long camp and sent the captain, Governor O. K. Allen, into a spin. At first he would not believe it, as he had thought he had the machine under control and that a slate of candidates would be chosen in orderly fashion at a caucus.

But shortly after the announcements were made both Noe and Martin walked into the governor's office and told him the facts. They both left smiling and pleased and Governor Allen left by a rear door.

NABS SPURIOUS MONEY PASSER

Secret Service Arrest in New York Termed Biggest In Decade.

New York, Sept. 20 (AP).—The government secret service Thursday night scored what it considered its biggest bag in a decade with the arrest of William Watts, former Nebraska drugstore clerk, whose talent for engraving lifted him to the government's designation of master counterfeiter of the modern underworld.

Watts, arrested Wednesday in a counterfeiting-equipped apartment in Union City, New Jersey, was held under $50,000 bond.

The former drugist was accused by secret service agents as being the "brains" and master designer of counterfeit-money operations which have demoralized race-track bookies at Saratoga with a flood of spurious and expertly designed bills.

Say He Worked With Count

Watts, agents said, worked with the elusive Robert Miller, the much-sought "Count Lustig," who recently departed from the federal detention prison via a rope of knotted bed sheets at high noon and in full view of some hundreds of passers-by.

"The Count" was arrested several weeks ago on counterfeiting charges and agents said he distributed the spurious money turned out by Watts. He concentrated on race tracks in the New York area.

In Watts' apartment, where he lived alone, agents reported finding a complete counterfeiting outfit, $11,000 of expertly-made $100 notes of the Bank of San Francisco, and approximately $55,000 in Federal Reserve notes on the Federal Reserve banks of Dallas and Cleveland.

NO ONE HURT AS CARS SIDESWIPE

Accident Follows Effort of New Yorker to Avoid Hitting Local Auto.

No one was injured but damage of approximately $60 was caused to two automobiles in a "squeeze play" accident on the Lincoln highway, one mile east of Cross Keys, at 4 o'clock, Thursday afternoon.

The cars involved in the accident were a coach, owned by Nick Melligakes, Gettysburg and driven by Miss Elizabeth Gallagher, 27, 141 Hanover street, and a coupe, owned and operated by Charles Joseph McLarney, 33, of Buffalo, New York.

Miss Gallagher was traveling west and was nearing the crest of a slight grade. McLarney, who was going east, was attempting to pass a machine traveling in the same direction, when Miss Gallagher's car appeared over the brow of the hill.

To avoid crashing headon into the Gettysburg woman's coach, McLarney swerved his car to the left side of the highway where it upset. Miss Gallagher's car was caught in a "squeeze" between McLarney's machine and the other automobile going east. The right side of the Buffalo man's machine and Miss Gallagher's car sideswiped before McLarney's coupe left the highway and upset.

Damage to McLarney's car was estimated at $50, while damage to the Melligakes machine was $25. McLarney assumed full responsibility for the accident, and agreed to pay for the damage to the Melligakes car. McLarney's machine was towed to a New Oxford garage.

McLarney was alone. Miss Gallagher was accompanied by several women and children.

Corporal S. Schaeffer, of the local sub-station of the state highway patrol, investigated the accident.

GIRL DIES IN ESCORT'S ARMS

Youth Found Sitting in Park With Body of Phoenixville Bakery Employee.

Norristown, Pa., Sept. 20 (AP).—Miss Marie Ase, 24, Phoenixville, was found dead today in the arms of Gordon Stover, 25, also of Phoenixville, under circumstances that caused Montgomery county authorities to start an investigation. Stover was found sitting on a piece of timber in Grand View park by a park caretaker.

His automobile was found in a wide 20-foot gutter that runs to the creek.

The girl was employed in a bakery and Stover in a grocery store.

Stover told police he and Miss Ase and another couple were drinking in a roadhouse near Norristown last night and later started for Phoenixville. What happened after that is not clear to Stover, he told police.

Coroner Deitre said a casual examination of the girl's body indicated no marks of violence except a bruise covering a wide area on the left side of the neck.

The accident occurred as the Smith boy and other children were playing at St. Mary's school during the recess period. Cratin was driving east on North street.

According to the driver of the machine, he had halted his car to permit several girls to cross the street in front of him. As he started he said, the boy running backwards, struck the right fender of the automobile.

BRITISH SHIPS CAUSE PROTEST

Italy to Appeal to League Council Following Britain's Fleet Movements.

(By the Associated Press)
Great Britain's concentration of fighting ships in the Mediterranean is to be met, according to high officials in Rome, with a protest by Italy to the League of Nation's council.

Italian sources, particularly the Italian press, said the British action constituted a threat of war.

Official surprise was immediately expressed in London where authorities said that the British fleet maneuvers were only precautionary in the light of possible hostilities between Italy and Ethiopia along the route of the British empire communication.

There was no threat against Italy they stated.

Meanwhile speculation was aroused as to the whereabouts of a number of Italian ships which had not reported into the Suez canal although they were due there a week ago.

Quetta Emerges
By May Tremblor

Bombay (AP).—Ill-fated Quetta, virtually demolished by an earthquake on May 31, slowly is digging itself out of its own ruins.

Although British military headquarters have been moved to Karachi there no longer is any danger that the once thriving city will be completely abandoned. Its civil population is returning and working hard to clear the wreckage.

Already one movie theater has been reclaimed and is showing to full houses every night. Its matinee shows are flimsy and the equipment none too reliable, but the programs are a welcome relief to those who for months have buried corpses.

More than 50 shops have reopened in earthquake-proof asbestos structures and applications for licenses have been received from several hundred merchants. Stocks of many shops were salvaged.

While streets are being cleared rapidly, it is estimated the redemption of the stricken city will require at least another year.

Mud Baths Make
“Antique” Rugs

London (AP).—Genuine “antique” Chinese carpets can be produced in a jiffy simply by immersing them in mud for a few days, revealed a British expert on Oriental goods in a customs suit here.

He had been accused of evading heavy duties by declaring a set of “antique” rugs at only $400, while appraisers thought them worth $1,250.

After a long explanation of the “antiquing” process, whereby the vividness of coloring is reduced, the expert finally convinced both the court and customs officials that his rugs were of the mud-bath variety.

COST HALTS GLASGOW
AIR DEFENSE

Glasgow (AP).—Talk about gas attacks led the Glasgow city council to appoint a committee to determine the cost of providing a gas mask for every inhabitant of the city. The committee figured it would cost $50,000,000. The council gasped and tabled the project.

BRITAIN, ITALY
MASS SOLDIERS,
SHIPS IN SEA

Military Observers
Call Mediterranean
“Powder Keg.”

GENEVA AWAITS
DUCE'S ACTION

London Sept. 20.—A dangerous situation in the Mediterranean, where Great Britain and Italy are massing instruments of war, absorbed capitals of the world and Geneva Thursday night.

Ships of both nations, airplanes and troops were moved into strategic points of the sea, some in close proximity.

Foreign military observers here, recalling the blowing up of the battleship Maine, called the situation a “powder keg,” which any untoward incident could explode.

Duce Names Commission
Premier Mussolini, apparently determined that Italy must be prepared for contingencies if she is to undertake settlement of the east African dispute, announced by an official decree, he was setting up a commission to effect a “formulation of legal measures” adjusting Italy's legal attitude under the international war code toward neutrals and belligerents.

Well-informed sources said the declaration gave proof again that Italy is ready to go forward in her expansion program under the sole leadership of Il Duce, regardless of difficulties.

Say Britain Wants War
Italian newspapers openly said Great Britain wants war. Official London remained silent, but ships in far off Chinese waters and the West Indies were involved as defenses were strengthened along the Empire's life line in the Orient.

Geneva, having produced its plan of peace, eyed the Mediterranean and Rome, waiting for Premier Benito Mussolini to act.

Indications were that Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia would accept the plan—that Premier Benito Mussolini would reject it flatly. The Italian cabinet will consider the subject Saturday.

Markets of the world were sharply and variously affected.

Dealings in London and Paris were depressed through nervous selling over the situation.

Activity in the Mediterranean and adjacent points stood out, Italy shifted twelve submarines from Trieste to Naples because of Britain's movements.

Other Italian war preparations saw an order for idle street car rails to be taken up because of a shortage of steel and men of military classes from 1901 through 1914 who had been rejected from service on physical grounds called up for a new examination. Military circles estimated 1,000,000 were affected.

VETS ASK FOR PROBE OF DISASTER
New Orleans, Sept. 20 (AP).—After listening to a graphic story of the recent Florida hurricane which killed some 300 war veterans in the Lower Florida Keys, United States Veterans of Foreign Wars, assembled in their 36th annual encampment, demanded by resolution Thursday a congressional investigation of the disaster.

The resolution, adopted unanimously, requested that the blame for the “appalling loss of lives” be fixed.

No sooner had the vote been recorded than a motion was put “censuring the President of the United States for vetoing the bonus which caused these veterans to meet death in the Florida hurricane.”

It immediately gave rise to a spirited debate and threw the convention into confusion for several minutes before being tabled by a standing vote.

The encampment went on record unanimously as favoring continuance of their fight for immediate and full payment of the adjusted service certificates.

Travel Bureaus
Held Responsible

Vienna (AP).—Austrian travel bureaus are responsible for the information they give, the supreme court has ruled.

A furrier ordered tickets to Helsingfors in a Vienna travel bureau. The route recommended to him included an airplane ride from Tallin to Helsingfors.

But when he arrived at Tallin he was told there was airplane service only in the winter months, when the sea is impassable for steamers.

It was much too late to reach Finland in time for the fur season and so he returned to Vienna, sued the travel bureau and won damages.

Arctic Eden Too
Hot for Eskimos

Fairbanks, Alaska, Sept. 20 (AP).—An Arctic “paradise” was described Thursday, a place where Eskimos grow forget-me-nots and bask in the sun while the butter keeps cool in underground refrigerators.

Mayor E. B. Collins of Fairbanks told of the spot, Herschel Island in Mackenzie Bay, N. W. T., Canada. Just back from an airplane trip there, he said:

“It's really too hot for the Eskimos. The island is a veritable flower bed. There are daisies, buttercups, forget-me-nots and many others.”

The skeptical were silenced by evidence, the mayor brought some of the forget-me-nots back.

Apparently the natives seldom know what.

“Why,” said Collins, “Eskimo families travel around in $5000 schooners and pay $1 a gallon for gasoline. They make their living by trapping in the winter. In the summer they travel on schooners, bask in the sun and enjoy life.”

“The week I was there,” Collins said, “the sky was clear and the sun beat down. The temperature rose almost to 50 degrees. The salt air was warm and invigorating.”

SEA MONSTER ON

TO TEST GUFFEY
COAL ACT SOON

Challenging Kentucky Company Gets Hearing Set
For Next Week.

Louisville, Ky., Sept. 20 (AP).—Challenging coal companies Thursday won the right to a constitutional test of the Guffey coal act in federal court here next Friday, September 27.

By legal strategy, their counsel precluded the objection of “prematurity” that enabled the government to avert such a test, in another case, in Washington last Monday.

Counsel invited the government to help present at the hearing the arguments for constitutionality of the Guffey act.

The test was won in the action of C. H. Clark, a stockholder in the R. C. Tway Coal company, for an injunction requiring the Tway company to join the “Little NRA” provided for by the Guffey act. The Tway company was one of 16 companies with sales averaging $654,750 monthly which filed suit here September 10 against Selden R. Glenn, internal revenue collector, to restrain enforcement of the Guffey bill.

Act Invalid, Charge

Charles I. Dawson, former federal judge and counsel for the plaintiffs, alleged in this bill five different kinds of unconstitutionality, and four provisions, which he contended congress had no power to enact.

The company said it had no intention of submitting to the Guffey bill or accepting its code. This would subject them to a 15 per cent exise on the value of their produce; submissive companies would get a rebate of 90 per cent of the tax, which would put the plaintiffs at a disadvantage in competition.

Man About
Manhattan

By George Tucker

New York.—Perhaps it will amuse you to know that Dorothy Hall, the actress, has named her new yacht “Hall By Herself.” A lass of ideas, she built a swimming pool out on her Westchester estate, notwithstanding the fact that one of the boundaries of the estate is Long Island sound. They are so close together you can stand in the sound and splash water into the pool.

Jon Whitcomb, the illustrator, is still one of repeal's foremost boosters. He's the chap who fashions most of the fancy labels you see on the sides of liquor bottles. Always on his toes, he saw repeal coming before it saw him and wound up with contracts from half a dozen major distillers.

Not because she is the largest or the finest ship afloat, but summer visitors to New York ought to time their arrival, if possible, with the coming of the new Normandie on her recurrent trips to New York. The giant craft really has something to offer to the eye. On board it is beautiful, of course, but my idea would be to stand on the waterfront about 100 yards above her as she lies placidly alongside her pier at night. The flame, the sweep, the whole scope of her in lights is a vista that can be rivaled only by the screen reproduction in color of a marine architect's dream.

Rummaging in an old trunk that had lain for years in a Cincinnati warehouse, Brad Hutton found a gold evening stick which the Masons of Leadville, Colorado, had presented to his grandfather, R. L. Hutton, in 1883. That trunk, incidentally, played a big part in Brad's early life. His father and mother, like himself, are actors and on road tours it was his bassonet.

“See that man,” exclaimed a confrere in the lounge of the Vanderbilt hotel the other night. “That's Alvarez Ledon, once the champion swordsmen of Cuba. He used to be a soldier under General Maximo Gomez in the revolutionary Cuban army, but now he's president of the Havana Docks corporation.”

There he was, all right, talking with George E. Galvin, explorer, big game hunter.

“Ever hear of Major Guerin nowadays, Al?” inquired Galvin. “He's the one who had charge of those 80 or 90 prisoners to be taken into the Santa Clara Province.”

“He's still alive, must be close to a hundred now.”

“Well, he made the quickest journey I ever heard of. He started out with those prisoners and was back in an hour. Nobody else ever made it in under a day.”

“How come?”

“Why, Guerin, with a grin, explained that the prisoners ‘deserted.’ It came out later that he had marched the men into the forest and matched the whole lot of them. In some respects, our war for independence could have given the French revolution pointers.”

MORNING STAR

— BY MARIAN SIMS —

SYNOPSIS: After the death of Edwin and Emily's baby, Emily determines not to publish her grief to the world, but to do the best she can to pick up the threads of her normal life and live again. Edwin's prudence and stubborn narrow-mindedness were difficult enough before; now, however, he seems to feel there is something rather disgraceful in Emily's actions. Grief is grief to prove it, and one should wear black to prove it.

Chapter 33 TRUTH COMES OUT

Sunday, the day after Christmas, Emily moved restlessly about, throwing out faded flowers, putting greeting cards into a box to be used as an index to next year's list, emptying ashtrays that had been filled by their Christmas callers.

The box of cards, she decided, could go in the guest room desk, where they would be quite out of the way until next year. She opened the guest room door and stopped short upon the threshold.

Edwin was inside, quite motionless, staring into the opened chest that held the tiny possessions of Jeffrey Felton Barnes.

She had carefully refrained during Christmas day from any mention of the thing nearest her heart and the light broke her completely. With a starting sob she crossed the room and put her arms about him. "Oh, my darling, can't we help each other?"

"The silence that followed was like a cold hand upon her heart. She realized suddenly that Edwin's arms were not holding her; they were merely about her. She raised her head and looked intently into his expressionless face.

"I didn't know," he said finally, in a level, monotonous voice, "that you needed help."

In that instant she understood. Understood his first rush of tenderness after the baby's death and his gradual withdrawal during the past few weeks.

Edwin had been trained to a rigid code of respect for the dead and he had expected her to mourn, visibly and audibly.

He had doubtless expected her to wear black clothes for a year as an outward indication that her heart was broken, and at the end of the year to take them off because her heart had mended suddenly, in a day.

And understanding that, she saw for the first time how hopeless it all was; how useless her struggles and concessions and sacrifices had been. In a year and a half Edwin had learned so little about her that he could think she didn't care.

He still measured her conduct in terms of conventional behavior, in a thing that lay so close to her heart. She realized that after this she could never try to please, or even to live with him, no matter what she had promised.

She looked into his eyes for a great many seconds. "Would you mind coming into the living-room where it's warm?" she asked steadily. "There are a lot of things I'd like to talk to you about."

He followed her wordlessly and they faced each other on the hearth. He politely offered her a chair but she shook her head. You didn't fight for your life sitting down.

"Edwin," she said finally, "you don't love me at all, do you?"

He hesitated. "You make it—difficult, don't you?"

"That isn't what I'm asking just now. Do you?"

"I don't feel as I once did," he confessed honestly. "You're such a different person."

"Meaning that you loved me once but that you don't care any more?" she insisted. "Don't be afraid of my feelings; I—haven't any left."

"I know it," he said. "That's why I can't love you—as much."

"That's what I wanted to find out." She was amazed at the steadiness of her own voice; she scarcely recognized it. "Now then will you tell me why you changed?"

"Because you did," he said promptly. "Your—leaving me—was the first blow; you'll never know what that cost me. And you've been different ever since you came back from Birmingham. You knew how I felt about—things—before you married me, and instead of respecting my views you've disregarded them entirely. Laughed at them; not openly, but really, from the very first."

"Has it occurred to you, Edwin," she asked, "that the reason I left you in the first place was because I wasn't altogether in accord with your views about—things?"

"You never said so before we married."

"You would never give me a chance. You avoided talking about important subjects as if they had been indecent. But it didn't matter so much then because I wasn't your property. I didn't belong to you."

He made a gesture of protest but she disregarded it. "And did it never occur to you," she drove her arrows mercilessly home, "that having left you once and having come back, under duress, as it were, because I promised when you were so desperately ill, that I might need to be humored in my eccentricities if I was to be happy with you? You were so frightfully upset over the discovery that I wasn't making you a good wife that you overlooked completely the possibility that you might be making me a bad husband."

He defended himself hotly. "I've never been unfaithful to you even in my mind."

She laughed ruefully. "My dear man, you might have betrayed me half a dozen times and it wouldn't have been half so fatal as constantly disapproving of me!"

"You see," he cried. "That's exactly the sort of thing I'm talking about. You deliberately laugh at everything I hold sacred. You'd laugh at anything on earth."

"I've laughed most of the time, Edwin, to keep from crying. And at least I haven't tried to change your opinions; I've let you cherish them in peace."

"There's no need to be ashamed of them," he insisted complacently. "At least, their morality isn't questionable."

She sighed. "It must be lovely to be so sure of your own infallibility. That's the spirit that makes me think that uncompromising morality does more to foster vice than anything else in the world."

She broke off suddenly. It was as if she and Edwin were speaking different languages, and there was no interpreter present. She realized with amazement that she disliked Edwin more than she had ever disliked anyone in her life, and that she had always disliked him.

She had lived with him a year and a half, and in that time their spirits had never even approached each other. And having made her discovery she asked only to be done with the whole relationship. She pushed on.

"Laying aside the question of my views, in what other ways have I failed?"

"None," he admitted readily. "I've been a good housekeeper, haven't I?" She knew the respect he had for the domestic virtues.

"Yes," Edwin said honestly, "you've been perfect."

"And I've been interested in your affairs," she thought of hours of the wholesale grocery business, "far more than you've ever been in mine."

He could not deny that, but his silence indicated plainly that there was very little in a woman's affairs that merited interest.

"And I've been—affectionate, Edwin." She was determined that he should acknowledge her virtues as well as her failings; this time her conscience was going to be clear.

"There have been times when I've put a great deal more into—caresses—than you have. I've often kissed you lately when I've had the feeling that you would never have thought of it."

His silence was a tacit admission of that. With all his prejudices Edwin was as honest as herself.

"And as for—the baby—" her voice broke on that, "you've never known about the nights I've cried myself to sleep, because you were already asleep. I've tried to fill the vacuum, and you haven't realized that the reason I've worked so hard to fill it was because the vacuum was so unbearable!"

She couldn't talk any more of that if she was to get through this thing. She steeled, summed it up tersely.

"Then the reason I've failed—lost your love—is because I haven't been able to change my self?"

"If you want to put it that way."

"And you can't or won't, see that my self is just as important, just as vital, to me as yours is to you? It's the one thing I'll never change, even to make you happy."

"I don't expect you to. I stopped expecting that a long time ago."

She gathered her courage into her hands. "Then, Edwin, we're going to get a divorce."

"What!" He was speechless with amazement.

"Yes." She almost smiled at his consternation. "I promised to stay as long as you wanted me. You've admitted that you don't love me; I'm telling you now that I don't love you. That ends it automatically."

Her only thought now was to get away. She caught up a hat and coat and without a backward glance walked swiftly from the house. (Copyright, 1935, by Marian Sims)

MOUNT AWAITS OPENING GAME

Coaches Are Pleased With Fighting Spirit Shown By "Mountaineers."

Lacking only experience, which it will gain through actual competition, the Mt. St. Mary's college football team enters its final fortnight of training before the opening game, anxiously awaiting the first kick-off.

Possessing weight, speed, power and the determination to win, the Mountaineers have only their "greenness" to overcome to be a winning team. Composed almost entirely from new material the Blue and White forces will take the field against the first opponent, Canisius, with an "experimental" line-up.

Battles are still being waged for every position on the team. The seven veterans may not even see action during the early part of the season so strongly are they being pushed by the many newcomers to the squad.

Eight ends, a half dozen tackles, six guards, and four centers comprise the group of linemen all of whom have equal opportunities of starting the first game. In the backfield the competition is just as keen if not more so. For every department of the offense and defense there are at least four strong candidates.

Head Coach Joe Lawler and his assistant Walter Opekun are keenly amused at the fashion in which their charges are battling. Wisely they have given no indications as to the members of a first string team. As it appears now no such announcement will be made until the eve of the opening game with Canisius in Buffalo.

ONE KILLED, DOZEN HURT IN COLLAPSE OF THEATER

Boston, Sept. 20 (AP).—One workman was killed and about a dozen others injured, some perhaps fatally, as the 80-year-old Hollis theater collapsed Wednesday while wreckers were demolishing it.

Without warning, the structure came tumbling down with a tremendous crash. When the dust settled all that remained was a great heap of shattered lumber resembling a loosely piled heap of kindling wood.

Cries of the injured rose from the wreckage, and rescuers fought to reach them. One rescuee, that of Henry Smith, 35, was affected only through amputation of a leg which was pinned beneath a big timber.

POETS CALL ON HOPKINS FOR WORKS FUND SHARE

Washington, Sept. 20 (AP).—The poets of the nation told Harry L. Hopkins, works progress administrator, that they wanted a slice of the works-relief billions. Earl A. Frederick Fair Opens October 8

Frederick, Sept. 20.—The Frederick fair will be held on October 8, 9, 10 and 11 with both day and night shows. The oldest agricultural fair in Maryland, with one of the best plants in the east, promises one of its greatest shows.

The board of managers has concentrated its efforts on the exhibitions and attractions in front of the grandstand, with the result that they have secured the best free attractions in the long history of Frederick's fair.

More than enough attractions will be available to permit the programs for day and night shows to be entirely different, for a straight run of all attractions will occupy at least six hours.

One of the attractions will be the appearance, day and night, of Troop "F," third U. S. cavalry from Fort Myer, Virginia. This troop, "the President's own" and crack exhibition unit, will be camped on the fair grounds all week. In front of the grandstand, they will show their regular routine, including dismounted action with machine guns and riflemen, using blank ammunition, and the "rough-riding" team in a seems that the cards are stacked and poets get the joker.

PUBLISHER IS FREED FROM LIBEL CHARGES

Ancon, C. Z., Sept. 20.—Ruling that District Attorney J. J. McGulgan, had failed to establish a case, Judge Richard C. P. Thomas in district court Wednesday directed the jury to deliver a verdict of acquittal for Nelson Romsevell, publisher of the Panama American on criminal libel charges brought by Col. James V. Heidt, commander at Fort Clayton.

Judge Thomas sustained a motion for dismissal, because, he said, the government had failed to produce indispensable evidence showing that Heidt was the man libeled or that he is post commander at Fort Clayton.

The charges were based on alleged references in a letter in the newspaper to Heidt as Hitler and as guilty of mispending company funds. Four other libel charges against Romsevell are pending.

Twelve-year-old Dick Engle, of New Rochelle, N. Y., made a hole in one, on a 150-yard hole, just three weeks after he began playing golf.

86% PREFERRED COBBS CREEK TO ANY WHISKY AT ANY PRICE

We wanted to find out the whole truth about our whisky. So we dropped into leading bars in many cities with a *Certified Public Accountant as witness—and our whisky concealed in a bag. And we said to bartenders and customers:

"Pour yourself a drink of any whisky of your choice, no matter how expensive. Then pour yourself a drink from this bottle in the bag. Compare them. Then tell us frankly which you like better."

What could be fairer, tougher? For our whisky sells at a rock-bottom price and it was matched against the field. What's more, nobody knew its name or its price.

What happened? Those men put the whiskies on the spot. For flavor. For aroma. And when they were through... 86% proclaimed Cobbs Creek the winner!

What a guide to liquor value! Here's Cobbs Creek, the certified winner against whiskies at any price, yours at an amazingly low price. Get a bottle today!

ARREST WOMAN BEGGAR.
HAS $5,000 IN BANK

Philadelphia, Sept. 20 (AP).—Police who arrested a woman beggar on a purse-snatching charge Thursday said they found $98 and a Baltimore bank book listing $5,000 deposits in her own purse.

In addition, they said, Mrs. Goldie Pezementa, 56, owns the home in which she lives.

Relief officials reported she has been on their rolls four years, receiving $4.30 weekly.

Mrs. Clare Cohen accused Mrs.

Today's Talk

—By George Matthew Adams—

HOW TO BE LIKABLE

ALL LIFE seems to be arranged upon the herding plan. Like attracts like. The social element predominates everywhere. No one is happy alone. In the field the herd of cows or horses stay near to one another. The family is the basis.

It is the same with the qualities of mind and heart with which each of us is endowed to a greater or lesser extent. People like us if they like our qualities—and our qualities appeal to them unconsciously because they possess many of them, too.

It is fortunate that each of us has a personality, however, of his or her own. We grade our likes and dislikes. But we cannot grade the likes or dislikes of others to our own. We have to accept or isolate ourselves from a large number who might be our great friends.

To be likable we must look for the finer qualities in others in whom many of the qualities we love stand out prominently, and the more we like such people with these qualities, the more we are enriched by them in our own lives.

No one is either loved or popular who is forever looking for the unattractive qualities in others. I like the idea of speaking kindly and well of others or else not speaking of them at all. The easiest thing in the world is to tear a person to shreds. It takes so little intelligence. The happiest people known however, are those who always have a good word to speak of anyone whom they know.

Eddie Guest once wrote a lovely poem entitled "It Takes a Heap of Living to Make a Home." Well, it takes a heap of understanding to gain and hold a friend, but it isn't a difficult task. Like your friend for what he is—not for what he isn't, or for what you would like to have him.

The fact that we are all created unique, yet with the same flavor that distinguishes the great human stream, is evidence that the more we do to make for peace and understanding, the happier we make ourselves and the world.

YOU CAN SEW THIS YOURSELF

Make A Cute Marian Martin Pantie
Frock For "Baby Sister"

PATTERN 9365

Do you see the flutter of angel's wings? They're part of this angelic tot's pretty frock, which is easy as can be to cut and sew. Even a kiddie must have her "companion pieces" these days, so Marian Martin has included a pair of sturdy panties, which may have a self ruffle or a wee edging of lace. This tiny tot is as pleased with the total result of her mother's wise choice of patterns as mother is with the low initial cost and upkeep. The square neckline is so becoming and the buttoned scallops so decorative. Percale or novelty cottons tub nicely. Complete, diagrammed Marian Martin sew chart included.

Pattern 9365 may be ordered only in sizes 2, 4, 6, 8 and 10. Size 6 requires 2 3/4 yards 35-inch fabric.

Send fifteen cents in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for each Marian Martin pattern. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, the style number and size of each pattern.

The new Marian Martin Pattern Book is ready now! 40 pages . . . color illustrations . . . dozens of easy-to-make pattern designs — for every occasion and all your family, this whole fall and winter! Special slenderizing patterns, step-by-step sewing lessons, lovely gifts easy to make. Fabric and accessory news. Practical advice on choosing clothes. Send for your copy now! Put A Bit of Fabric Contrast Into
This Marian Martin Frock For Fall

PATTERN 9541

Two fabrics are smarter than one this season, as shown by this debonair model who looks a wee bit like a Scotch lassie. Plaid taffeta collar and belt would make an especially nice contrast with the dress in some novelty monotone silk, wool or crepe. Raglan sleeves are comfortable and give a smooth shoulder line, while the skirt flares ever so gently front and back. You may choose between two attractive and easily made necklines, a V neck with youthful jabot collar, or the high, round boyish style (see small sketch). Complete, diagrammed Marian Martin sew chart included.

Pattern 9541 may be ordered only in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 requires 3 3/4 yards 39-inch fabric and one yard contrasting.

Send fifteen cents in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for each Marian Martin pattern. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, the style number and size of each pattern.

WANTS TO TAKE NAME OF MOTHER-IN-LAW

White Plains, N. Y., Sept. 20 (AP).—A novel request that the name of his entire family be changed to that of his mother-in-law's family was granted Ralph L. Shainwald Jr., New Rochelle, New York artist, Thursday by Supreme Court Justice Raymond A. Rich.

The court decided that Shainwald will be known henceforth as Ralph Shainwald von Ahlefeldt. His wife and children fall heir to the same surname.

The litigant acted on the wish of his late mother-in-law, who told him, he said, that inasmuch as she had no male issue, she hoped that her own family name might be perpetuated through her grandchildren.

Failure of Scheme to Create
Nobility in U. S. Announced

Washington, Sept. 20 (AP).—J. P. Reinach, young, decidedly French of accent and gesture, Wednesday announced the failure of his plan to create a new United States nobility—with titles at $200,000 to $1,000,000 each.

He made quite an occasion of it. Preparing a six-page statement titled, "Wanting to Save the United States from the Slavery of Money: He Fails," Reinach revealed he had envisaged himself making "a big speech against money" at the "ennobling ceremony," his whole thesis being that in the United States "the only scale of value is money," and that this country therefore should have a nobility system to inculcate "social responsibility; sense of honor; sense of duty."

He himself was going to say, "I create you duke—" handing out a parchment paper with seal.

He said he had set huge sums on nobility in letters to a list of wealthy United States citizens he had carefully selected with this double purpose: First, only men of daring would, within a definite short time limit—forty-eight hours after receipt of a letter—pay out the sums he set on titles; second, a huge sum would be necessary to launch the world's greatest library, sponsor all the arts and perform the other philanthropic services he expected of his American nobility.

However, Reinach reported, he got only twenty letters in reply to his form letter setting $1,000,000 on the title duke, $700,000 on the title marquis, $500,000 on the title count and $200,000 baron.

"None sent money," he said. "Some not on the list asked titles; others wanted the titles cheaper."

3,500,000 WPA JOBS PLANNED

Hopkins Sets That Number To Be Employed Before November 1 Deadline.

Washington, Sept. 20 (AP).—Harry L. Hopkins predicted Thursday the 3,500,000-job goal of the work-relief drive will be reached November 1, but simultaneously opened the door to continuation of the federal role after that deadline.

The Works Progress administrator, a frequent visitor at recent Hyde Park conferences with President Roosevelt, told his press conference 931,703 persons already had been put to work, leaving 2,458,297 to absorb in the next 42 days.

"Our schedule," Hopkins emphasized, "provides for our putting these people to work. On the assumption that we will end direct relief November 1."

But he added immediately that should the work quotas not be reached in some localities, WPA will "feel obligated" to make further direct relief provisions for those sections. Such a development was regarded by some observers as at least a partial abandonment of another deadline set in the $4,000,000,000 work drive—that the Federal role should end with October.

At the same press conference Hopkins announced the issuance of an administrative order to state executives of WPA vesting them with power to fix the hours of work under the program.

Faith Healer's Son Cured by Operation

Philadelphia, Sept. 20 (AP).—The 17-year-old boy who hobbled into Judge Theodore Rosen's court on crutches a year ago and was ordered to submit to a leg operation despite his father's protests of belief in faith healing, walked out of the same court Thursday, scarcely limping.

The boy, John Hoffman, Jr., was dismissed for medical probation by Judge Rosen, but was told to keep in touch with the social service department of the Philadelphia general hospital.

Three years ago John broke his leg. In July, 1934, the Society to Protect Children from Cruelty brought the case before Judge Rosen, saying the boy needed medical attention. John Hoffman, a trolley car motorman, and his wife, parents of the boy, opposed surgery.

Judge Rosen, however, ordered the operation, in which it was necessary to remove bone and a half inches of decayed bone from the boy's leg. In a report from the hospital Judge Rosen was informed that the boy requires neither a crutch nor brace and has gained weight.

FIND DYNAMITE NEAR AIR CORPS RESERVE BASE

Long Beach, Calif., Sept. 20 (AP).—Discovery of dynamite under a bridge near the $100,000 Army Air Corps reserve base at Long Beach Thursday started an investigation by sheriff's deputies and army intelligence officers into a possible plot to destroy the base.

Willie Verhaegen, 14-year-old school boy, reported finding a fifty-pound box of dynamite. When he led officers to the scene, the box was gone, but the officers found twenty-eight sticks of the explosive there. They were destroyed.

VICTORIAN FLOWER TOUCH

London (AP).—Tall feathery red and ivory spirea, arranged loosely in a crystal clear jug, give a charming Victorian air to a room which suits many present day decoration schemes.

Indian Legend To Be Enacted On Waters of Dismal Swamp

Portsmouth, Va., Sept. 20 (AP).—The legendary Indian youth and his "maid so true" will paddle their white canoe again over Lake Drummond's waters in pageantry October 14 and 15, inaugurating a tour of the Dismal Swamp.

While spectators, seated in boats, watch the shadowy forms of the actors in the drama, the story of the tragic Indian romance will be retold.

Thomas Moore, the Irish poet, fascinated by the tale of the Indian who lost his mind upon the death of his beloved and wandered into the Dismal Swamp, wrote the poem on a visit to Virginia.

Insists Sweetheart Living
Insisting that his sweetheart was not dead, the Indian said she had "gone to the lake of the Dismal Swamp, where all night long by firefly lamp she paddles her white canoe."

Lighting more modern than the firefly lamp will illuminate Lake

Drummond on the nights of the pageant, sponsored by the Portsmouth chamber of commerce, however, while the drama tells the story of the Indian's wandering "through the tangled juniper, beds of reeds, through many a fen, where the serpent feeds, and man never trod before."

Boat Fails to Return
Exhausted, he finally reached the lake where "a meteor bright over its surface played." Constructing a boat "of the birchen bark, which carried him off from the shore," he followed the meteor's light.

The boat did not return.

MISSING BOY FOUND DEAD IN REFRIGERATOR

Cleveland, Sept. 20 (AP).—An all-day search for four-year-old Oscar Hein, Jr., whose mother had missed him playing in the yard, ended Thursday night with the finding of the boy's body in an abandoned refrigerator refrigerator some distance from the home.

The boy's head had been bleeding, indicating, coroners' assistants said, that he had injured himself in a frantic effort to open the door after imprisoning himself.

FISH AND DOGS BLAMED IN WRECKED ROMANCE

Naval Officer Says Wife Gave Most of Her Time to Pets

Los Angeles, Sept. 20 (AP).—Ten dogs and 50 bowls of fish figured prominently Thursday in a suit for divorce filed by a naval officer, Roland M. Comfort.

In his complaint he asked for custody of his son, stating that his wife, Helen E. Comfort, lived with the boy, the dogs and the fish in two rooms. The officer said his wife went to Vineland, New Jersey, and devoted most of her time to the pets after the Comforts separated in 1923.

In 1932 an elaborate centennial celebration was held at Gettysburg college with many eminent guests from all parts of the country in attendance.

McCarl Again Halts Work in Reedsville

Washington, Sept. 20 (AP).—Comptroller General McCarl was disclosed Thursday to have stepped again into the path of the Reedsville, West Virginia, resettlement project, this time ruling that $83,000 had been improperly obligated for a factory there.

McCarl originally had held that there was no legal authority for spending $525,000 of the original works funds for a factory at the project in which Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt has taken a great interest.

The original plan was to build a plant there to make postoffice equipment. Failing to get congressional authorization for such a plant, another type of building was begun.

McCarl in his ruling said it appeared that the contracts were entered into without further submission to his office. The building now is about 80 per cent finished.

Noted Diplomat Of France Dies

Vevey, Switzerland, Sept. 20 (AP).—Jules Cambon, 90, whose long and brilliant career as a French diplomat and then as a financier was ended by death Thursday, will be buried in the Paris Montparnasse cemetery Monday.

The former ambassador to Washington and Berlin will lie beside his brother, Paul Cambon, former ambassador to London and the other half of the "Cambon brothers" diplomatic team. Paul died in 1924.

bon was ambassador to Washington and acted for Spain as a negotiator for peace.

Britain Far Outranks Italy In Battleships and Cruisers

(By the Associated Press)
Concentration of the British and Italian fleets in the Mediterranean area focuses world attention upon the relative naval strength of these two powers.

The warships of Great Britain are reckoned as the world's foremost naval force, followed closely by the United States and Japan.

France ranks fourth and Italy a close fifth among world naval powers.

Fifteen Battleships To Four
Figures obtained from American naval sources show Great Britain has 15 modern battleships built, none under construction. Both countries' naval authorities regard the battleship as practically immune from destructive air attack and as the backbone of sea power.

Italy was said to have four battleships, three of which are over age and one of which will be over age next year. It is possible, however, that they may have been modernized.

In addition to two 35,000-ton battleships laid down in October, 1934, are under construction. The new vessels will be heavier than any battleship in the United States fleet and will be surpassed in size in the British fleet only by the 42,000-ton battle cruiser Hood.

Eighteen Heavy Cruisers To Seven
Great Britain is shown to have 18 heavy cruisers. Italy seven, the former has 17 light cruisers, the latter 12. Great Britain has 56 under-age destroyers, Italy 55.

Italy leads Great Britain in number of modern-type submarines, however, with 48 against Great Britain's 36.

The British are building 58 ships, naval sources at Washington said, while the Italians have 23 under construction.

A quick glance at the total number and tonnage of the actual fighting ships of the two navies shows Great Britain has 294 ships, with a total tonnage of 1,188,284, compared with 188 Italian ships with a total tonnage of 398,564.

Britain Leads In Construction
Of what naval men call "under-age" craft, Great Britain has a total of 148 ships, with a tonnage of 731,510, compared with 125 of 294,806 totals tons for Italy. Great Britain's tonnage under construction is 253,150, against 110,234 for Italy.

Jane's Fighting Ships, usually accepted as an authority on battle craft of the world, lists both countries as having many more ships than these, but the Jane classification includes the total number of ships, some of which are over-age craft eligible under the Washington treaty of 1922 to be replaced. Many of such ships are generally considered by naval men to be obsolete and of doubtful value in actual combat.

Recently compiled American figures showed that the British Navy had a personnel of 94,482 officers and men, the Italian Navy 55,136.

YOUNGEST OF BOSWELLS REVEALS HER MARRIAGE

Toronto, Ont., Sept. 20 (AP)—Vet. youngest of the three singing Boswell sisters, chatted freely of her marriage Thursday, having kept it secret since July 3, 1934.

With her husband, John Paul Jones, the youngest of the trio of radio sisters from New Orleans, is here on a belated honeymoon. Jones, assistant manager of the Tropical Oil company at Cartagena, Columbia, urged her to answer questions about the marriage. She talked about her unmarried sisters of the trio, Martha and Connie, and radio singing generally, but insisted it is a family tradition never to tell ages. She said, however, that the marriage had taken place at Houston, Texas.

To the Voters of Adams County

I am sincerely thankful to the voters of Adams county for the support given my candidacy at Tuesday's election.

Although I have been defeated for the nomination of Sheriff, I appreciate very much the support contributed through your votes, and I will give my full support to the Republican Party at the general election in November.

H. Earl Pitzer

MANY THANKS!

I am overwhelmed by the splendid vote given me by the members of my party for the Republican nomination for County Commissioner of Adams County in the Primary election Tuesday.

The vote given me is a testimonial that any man can point to with justifiable pride, coming as it does from those good people with whom I have lived and worked all my life.

I tried to conduct a clean, aggressive campaign and, so far as I know, have come through without creating any ill will or "hard feelings." I enter the general election campaign with a clear conscience, with the kindest feelings for everyone, with no preprimary promises to embarrass me and with confidence of victory in November.

I earnestly solicit the support of all voters in the general election. The only promise I intend to make is to pay attention to the job and to serve all the people honestly, conscientiously and to the best of my ability.

Again, I thank you, one and all!

BAITMORE
(Union Stock Yards)
The sizable supply of live stock yesterday approximated 2,100 cattle, 300 calves, 700 hogs and 3,300 sheep and lambs.

Cattle: Supplies were of little larger volume than had been anticipated in the cattle division yesterday with medium and good grade steers making up a sizable proportion of the run. Most offerings of all classes were grass fed, a small sprinkling being grain on grass. Trading developed slowly. Sellers sought early buyers to strong prices, while buying side aimed at a slight reduction in values. Not much of the crop cleared on early rounds, but shortly after midmorning a movement got under way, with prices largely steady on steers. A few sections reported weakness, while occasionally a buyer was found who opinioned that the better kinds of steers showed a little strength. Heifers were scarce and about steady; cows and bulls ruled steady, but there was a little drag to the quality and weights. A good number found fairly broad outlet at steady prices. Bulk of the medium and good grade slaughter steers were weighing 1,000-1,250 pounds, brought $7.50-9.25; a round two loads of good heavies averaging 1,300 pounds were noted at $9.60, while a load of strictly good 1,425-pound weights brought $10.60. A few common and medium slaughter steers sold at $6.75-7.50, but most of this class that was suitable for feeding went on feeder account. Bulk of the medium-grade feeders brought $7.85; a couple loads or more of good, kinds at $8.25, while some were bid $8.50. Common Southern feeders sold at $5.50-6.75. Most common and medium slaughter beef carcasses at $5.50-6.25. A few better kinds averaged $7.40. Bee, cows turned in at $4.50-6.40, low cutters and cutters, $3.50-4.25. Common and medium bulls sold at $4.50-5.75.

Calves—Trading was rather slow and about steady in the calf division. Good and choice vealers cashed at $9-10; common and medium grade calves at $8-8.50, according to weight and weight. A few calves of rough, heavy calves sold down to $4.50; some cull vealers around $6 and below.

Hogs—Demand was rather narrow for hogs and trade slipped another time to place the top at $12.55. Bulk of the good and choice grade 175-210-pound weights brought $12.30-12.55; 220-250-pound averages, $11.65-12.15; heavier weights down to $11 and below. Most 140-160 pound weights made $12-12.35; desirable 120-140 pound averages, $11.40-12 and above. Good packing sows sold at $9-10-10.40.

Sheep—Trading proved a little slow on hogs, but the market carried a firm undertone. Several loads of choice lambs were on offer and sellers sought a little advance in prices. A scattering of truck lambs and good grade lambs sold at $9.50-10.75, while choice rail lambs were held upward to around $10-12.50. Common and medium-grade lambs sold at $6.25-9.50; culls down to $5.50. Slaughter ewes were steady at $2.50-4.

Lynch Negro as Jurors Probe Evidence in Trial

Oxford, Miss., Sept. 20 (AP).—While a jury weighed evidence in his trial on a charge of killing a white farmer, Ellwood Higginbotham, 28-year-old Negro, was lynched near here Tuesday night.

The screaming, terrified Negro accused of shooting Glen Roberts, planter, was seized in the county jail by a mob of between 100 and 150 persons and hanged to a tree two and a half miles from town.

The jury, which had been deliberating a verdict since late Tuesday, was dismissed by Judge Taylor McElroy. It was not learned how it stood.

Laid To Slowness of Jury Belief was expressed that failure of the jury to return a quick verdict prompted the lynching.

Members of the mob stormed the jail, overpowered Sheriff S. T. Lyles and three deputies and started smashing doors, with the officers trying vainly to prevent seizure of the prisoner.

Sheriffs deputies said mob leaders demanded the jail keys, and, when this was denied, took charge of the office, finding the keys in a desk drawer.

Prisoner Put In Auto After trying several of the keys, the one to Higginbotham's cell was found and the prisoner was taken to an automobile. A large crowd joined the procession to the scene of the lynching, almost within sight of the state university campus.

The body was left swinging from the tree. It was cut down later by the sheriff and his aides.

Officers announced an investigation.

Lancaster Educator Dies at Age of 97

Lancaster, Sept. 20 (AP).—Dr. John Piersol McCaskey, 97, noted educator, author, and former mayor of Lancaster, died in a hospital of pneumonia Thursday night.

He died as arrangements were being made for the birthday party October 9, which in late years became occasions for reunions of the men he taught during fifty years as principal of the boys' high school. McCaskey was credited with having originated Arbor Day, years before his friend, Dr. E. E. Higbee, as state superintendent of public instruction, made it a state-wide celebration.

Doctor McCaskey was secretary of the Pennsylvania State Teachers' association from 1886 to 1921, and editor of the Pennsylvania School Journal during the same period. He was mayor from 1907 to 1911.

He was credited with being one of the first educators to introduce supplementary school activities, and started vocal music courses in 1880, and later organized a high school orchestra.

He was a vestryman of St. James' Episcopal church more than 70 years. Franklin & Marshall college conferred an honorary degree upon him.

The Gettysburg college alumni association was founded in 1835.

AMUSEMENTS

MAJESTIC
"Alice Adams," starring Katharine Hepburn, will be shown at the Majestic theatre, Monday and Tuesday.

The story relates to a young girl in a small Midwestern town, who is aflame with ambition to climb out of the mire of genteel poverty and social ostracism. She masks her heartaches and tragedies behind a screen of pretense and deceit, only to find that truth and honesty are the only passwords to the land of her heart's desires.

Fred Stone, noted stage star, makes his screen debut in this RKO Radio Picture, in the part of the downtrodden, hopeless father who sacrifices his honor on the altar of his devotion to his family. Ann Shoemaker is cast as the nagging, disillusioned, slovenly mother of Alice Adams. Fred MacMurray plays opposite Miss Hepburn. The shiftless, lazy brother is portrayed by Frank Albertson, and the kind but selfish small-town capitalist is played by Charles Grapewin.

High School Gridmen to Play Practice Game on Saturday

The Gettysburg high school football squad will be sent through a regular practice game Saturday morning at 9:30 o'clock. Coach George Forney announced today. All features of a regular game will be observed from the opening kickoff.

Changes have been made almost daily by the high school mentor in moulding together his first string eleven and as yet a definite starting lineup has not been decided upon.

Coach Forney has been using the following players on his "A" squad: Lefever and Jones, ends; Guise and Stahle, tackles; Yingling, Linn, and Redding, guards; Tawney, center; Everhart, quarterback; Weikert and Stites, halfbacks, and Hayberger, fullback.

On the "B" squad the following candidates are waging a battle: Weller, Redding and J. Tawney, ends; P. Ecker and D. Ecker, tackles; Troxell and Little, guards; Maust, center; Stock, quarterback; Wright and Butt, halfbacks; Stanley, fullback.

Rodney Sachs, one of the Maroons' most promising backfield prospects, is out temporarily with a sprained foot but is expected to resume practice Monday.

Thursday afternoon the entire squad was sent through a twenty-minute scrimmage. Several of the candidates displayed brilliant form and may forge their way into varsity roles.

The Maroons will open their season here next Saturday afternoon with Lancaster Catholic high as the opponent.

STOCK REPORT

New York, Sept. 20 (AP).—Stock market prices dropped today in selling waves that put the ticker tape several minutes behind floor transactions. The reaction, one of the most severe in months, was attributed principally to the European war scare. Among losses of one to three points were U. S. Steel, A. T. and T., duPont, General Motors, Johns Manville, Westinghouse, Case, Pullman, Consolidated Gas, Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck and U. S. Smelting.

LIZARDS MEAN BUSINESS

Tulsa, Okla. (AP).—Frank and Pat Blair, Tulsa college students, hold no fear of the vicious looking "mountain boomers." Collection of the lizards for museums, zoology laboratories and biological supply houses is a summer-time business for them.

WHAT IS CREDIT?

Credit is not something which the bank gives to you. The bank merely helps you to cash or to use more widely the credit you already have.

Your credit represents a combination of your character, your business capital, your prospects, your property, or collateral of one kind or another. If you have none of these things, you have no credit, and no bank can supply what you lack. On the other hand, if you establish your credit with your bank by continued trustworthy dealings, you have both an asset and a reference of great value.

Also, when you need a loan for some safe, legitimate purpose, you can usually secure the necessary accommodation. That is what it means to have banking credit.
